Paper Industry Cleaning Up

The cleanup being carried out by the paper industry is commendable for two reasons. The multi-million dollar job will end pollution in water and air which have been soiled by pulp mills. Besides the group now calling attention to the progress made by the industry is the one which complained most loudly two years ago.

The non-profit Council on Economic Priorities in 1970 denounced the industry's pollution control efforts as "inadequate to disastrous." It estimated then that the 24 companies studied, which account for three-fourths of the nation's pulping capacity, would have to spend $750 million for pollution control. The price tag since has been upgraded to $840 million, not counting operating costs.

A new report from the council cites "remarkable progress" by the pulp and paper firms which will lead to "the industry's approaching 100 per cent adequate pollution control by the end of 1975." The industry and its critic each has set a model for responsible action in this case. —Miami (Fla.) Herald

Printed Word Endures

From the time television assumed a major role in the art of human communications, there have been those who have felt the demise of the printed word was only a matter of time. Yet, as Mr. James J. Kilpatrick has written: "...the situation is far from hopeless. The late Douglas Southall Freeman used to complain, in his melancholy moments, that newspapermen write on sand. In a sense we do. Yet this is better than television, which writes on wind. The printed word must always have this enormous advantage over TV - that it is available to the reader at his convenience, to be absorbed in whole or in part, at any hour; to be clipped, filed, or mailed. Some of the products of our labor may be used to wrap the fish, but as a medium of communication the printed word endures." Both TV and the printed word have their places so long as we live in a land where freedom of speech and freedom of the press stand as bulwarks of liberty. - Williamson (W. Va.) Daily News

Oh, Thank You, Sir

The word from Postmaster General Elmer T. Klassen is that the cost-control program in the Postal Service has been so successful it is no longer necessary to seek an additional one cent an ounce in first-class mail rates next year.

The service had previously announced plans to ask the supposedly independent Postal Rate Commission to raise the present 8 cent an ounce charge to 9 cents on first-class letters and packages beginning next January.

That will not be neccessary now, Klassen said, adding a couple of ominous qualifications: "Unless somebody incurs a financial obligation I'm not aware of now." And unless the postal unions, whose contracts expire next July, demand and get increases that require higher postal rates.

In other words, first-class mail will remain at 8 cents until after the election and perhaps a while longer. Big deal. - Montgomery (Ala.) Advertiser

People And Property

The FBI has released its annual compendium of national crime statistics, showing that crime rose more slowly last year than it has since 1965 but also noting that the slowdown resulted from decreased growth rates for crimes against property, not crimes of violence. That means, of course, that your property may be safer but your person isn't. - Little Rock (Ark.) Arkansas Gazette

Thieu rejects peace solution

SAIGON (AP) — A Saigon newspaper controlled by the presidential palace reported today that President Nguyen Van Thieu and his national security council have rejected any interim Indochina agreement for a limited peace.

Tin Song said that after three meetings with Henry A. Kissinger, the South Vietnamese told the U.S. presidential adviser they will not accept any temporary peace solution. Tin Song quoted Thieu as reaffirming his position that any agreement must be a lasting settlement.

Tin Song is financed by Thieu's personal aide, Hoang Duc Nha, and for that reason if often regarded as reflecting the official views of the presidentials palace.

Kissinger had been expected to meet for the fourth time with Thieu today and then return to Washington. But by dusk, he was still reported at the U.S. embassy and there had been no meetings with Thieu.

But the presidential envoy met for three hours today with Foreign Minister Tran Van Lam. The meeting started in the morning and ended well after noon. Earlier, Lam attended a cabinet meeting called by Thieu.

The U.S. embassy has refused to disclose Kissinger's movements in advance and has kept newsmen and photographers from getting near him since he arrived Wednesday night.

The main issue appears to be the Viet Cong's insistence on the ouster of Thieu and a coalition government that would organize general elections. Thieu has told government officials South Vietnam will never accept a coalition government.

A French correspondent broadcast a report from Saigon Friday that an "unusually well informed source" told him elements of a cease-fire would be announced by Nov. 1. Marcel Giuglaris, who is also a correspondent for the newspaper France Soir, broadcast the story on the privately owned station Europe No. 1.

In New York, the report was responsible for pushing the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks up 10.69 to close at 942.81.

Back in service

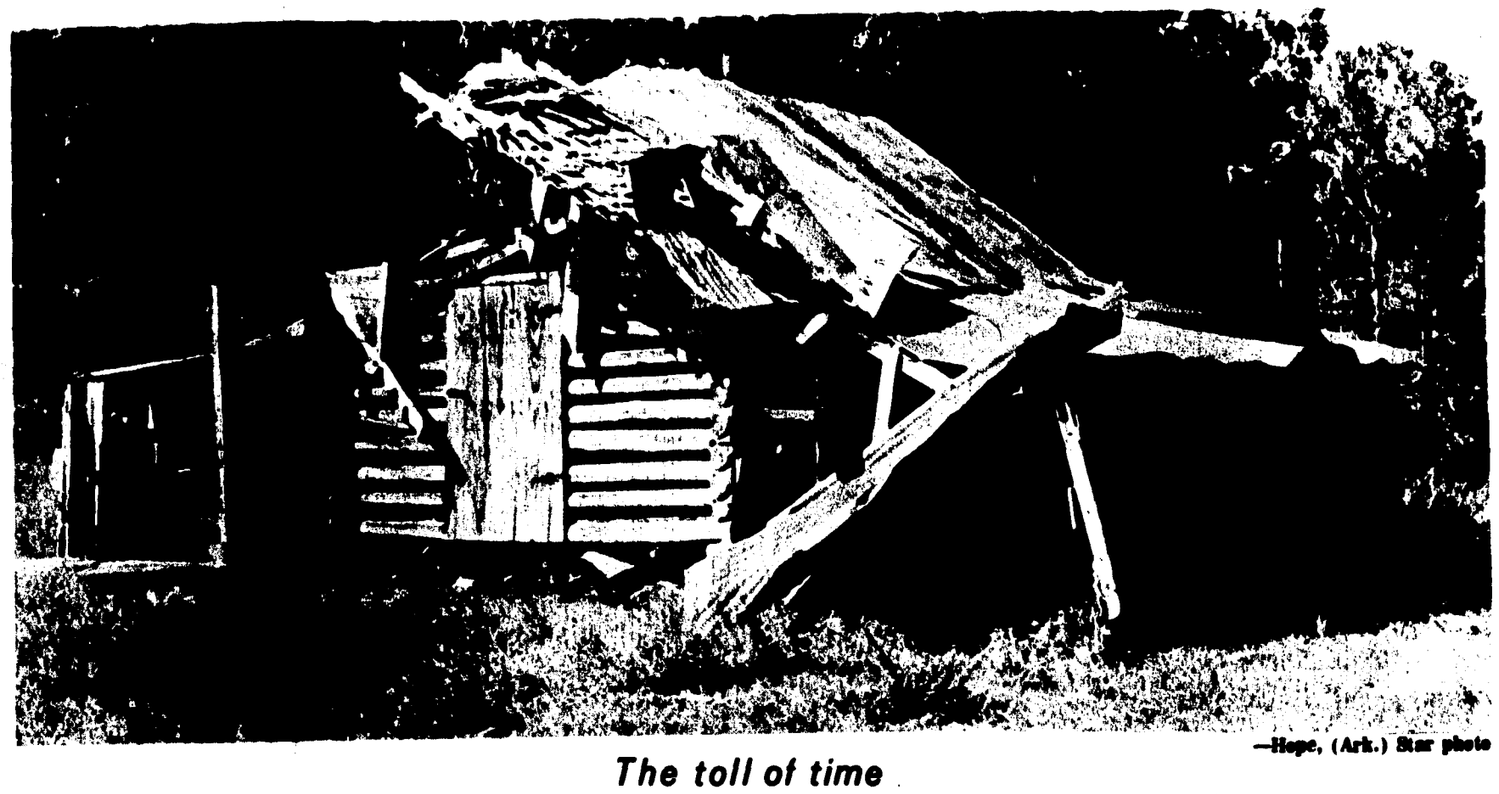

City manager Gerald Keith announced Friday afternoon that the Hope Fire Dept. pumper truck involved in a collision early yesterday is now back in service. City shop employees worked Friday making repairs on the truck in order to make it serviceable. The 750 gallon pumper truck is now back at the fire station and is available for fire protection Keith said.

Life more important than $

By FAUNE CONNER
Travel Writer Department of Parks and Tourism

What makes a man leave a $10,000 plus a year job, announce to his wife and five children he's selling their metropolitan home and travel well over 1,000 miles to settle on an isolated one and one-half acre farm? Well, for Rolf W. Brandt of Fayetteville, the answer is simple. "In Arkansas life is more important than the dollar", he says, and his move to the Ozarks was the first step toward the fulfillment of a lifelong dream.

Brandt, who labels himself a craftsman in wood, is rapidly becoming one of the most outstanding wood-carvers in the state and is proving his talent repeatedly by taking top honors at many arts and crafts shows throughout the southwest.

The 50-year old, easy-going artist now has a long-wished-for wood carving shop in his rural home on the Cato Springs Road approximately five miles southwest of Fayetteville and invites tourists to stop it, browse awhile, and see just how he makes his many beautiful carvings so depictive of life in the Ozarks.

Brandt's decision to pull up stakes in Long Island, New York, where he was a professional model builder for Grumman Aircraft Corporation came after becoming bored with 13 years of routine hours in an enclosed office. Vacationing in 1970, he and his wife, Jeane, visited relatives in the Jasper and Harrison area of northwest Arkansas, and a susceptible Brandt caught a terrific case of "mountain fever". Traveling throughout northwest Arkansas, he became enthralled with the unsurpassed scenery of the rolling hills and deep valleys and could only sum it up as "just fantastic". He knew then he would never be able to resist the lure of the Ozarks.

So following his dream to Arkansas, Brandt purchased the premises of a deserted private club outside of Fayetteville and moved into his new tavern home in August of 1971.

Since he has been in Arkansas, Brandt has had his work displayed at the Little Rock Art Center, the Fort Smith Art Center, Eureka Springs craft shops, various Arkansas department stores and at the Southroads Mall in Tulsa, Oklahoma, to name a few. He has won numerous prizes in arts and crafts competition and, while at Grumman's, received the honor of having five of his model airplanes placed in the Smithsonian Institute and five in the Pensacola Naval Museum in Florida. Brandt also painted the first model of the Lunar Exploration Module Spacecraft that was used in the Apollo moon flights.

Brandt has donated to the University of Arkansas Museum a beautiful diorama showing native whitetail deer in their natural forest setting. He is also carving pieces for another diorama depicting one of his favorite subjects, Indians. When completed, the impressive three-feet long diorama will display a family of historic Caddo Indians at work and play around their tepee home.

Brandt theorizes that, to be successful, artists should concentrate on the culture of their region and, in carrying out his idea, he produces many carvings of the colorful people of the Ozarks such as mountain fiddlers and hillbillies.

In addition to his carvings, Brandt is also talented in oil painting and sculptures, and his wife has a hobby of weaving. For the first time, he thinks his work is worthwhile and he is enjoying relaxed Ozark living. Feeling completely at home in Fayetteville and northwest Arkansas, Brandt says there's truth in the motto that Arkansas is the land of opportunity.

Search for Boggs is expanded

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — After more than 100 hours of false leads and fruitless search, rescuers weighed the chances of survival and readied every available plane today for an expanded manhunt for missing House Democratic Leader Hale Boggs and three other persons.

With more than 70 aircraft in the skies, Air Force spokesmen said the search would be aided today by the two sophisticated RF4C reconnaissance aircraft, en route from Bergstrom AFB in Texas.

Their efforts were aimed at probing deeper into cloud-covered mountain passes for some sign of life or wreckage.

Mostly cloudy and snowy weather was predicted over much of the search area.

As Boggs' wife Lindy and her family abandoned their vigil here, authorities said they would expand the 56,000-square-mile search area for Boggs, 58; Alaska's sole member of the House, Nick Begich, 40; Russell L. Brown, 37, a Begich aide; and pilot Don E. Jonz, 38, owner of Pan-Alaska Airways.

The Boggs family arrived in Anchorage Wednesday but returned to Washington early today aboard a White House plane.

The missing Cessna 310 vanished Monday on a 560-mile flight from Anchorage to Juneau, after Boggs had raised about $22,000 at a campaign speaking engagement for Begich here.

POTTED POT SWIPED

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP)—Somebody has swiped Albemarle County Sheriff George W. Bailey's potted pot.

Bailey kept the confiscated marijuana plants growing in cans on the windowsill of his office for use in lectures on drug abuse.

The other night, someone raised the window and lifted three of the plants. They left the pots, though.

Arkansas FOOTPRINTS

By GEORGE SMITH

Hope's own Jamie Russell (he's the man who you can always find at either one of two of Hope's cultural centers — the Country Club or the Dairy Diner) had a bee in his bonnet last weekend. Well, not exactly in his bonnet, but it was a bee and he got all fired up about it. Well, not fired up. . .but, anyway, here's the story.

Last weekend, Russell, being a country gentlemen, was sowing rye grass on his modest spread on State Highway 4. He was wearing his tailored overalls (or "overhauls" as all good southern country gentlemen call them), and was walking along, calmly sowing his rye and smoking his pipe. Knocking the ashes out of his pipe, he stuck it in his hip pocket. He suddenly felt something sting him somewhere south of his latisimus dorsi; he began beating himself in the general area of the stinging sensation — and burned his hand on a small flame which had risen from the hip pocket where the pipe had been placed.

Viewing the situation with the calm of a lubricated matador, he ripped off his overalls, stamped out the fire and, presumably, killed the bee which had caused the initial panic. According to witnesses (third-hand) he also did a darling dance in his drawers.

And, as the report goes, Jamie spent the rest of the weekend making his wife Joyce rub a mixture of Dr. Tichener's alcohol rub and Ben-Gay on the assorted stings and burns.

I have never been one to run to authorities for advice about anything, much less on how to rear my children. But I've been faced with a problem that even child expert Hiram Ginot couldn't unravel.

Our two-year-old, one Mattie Somer (pronounced "summer") by name, doesn't like to go to bed. Now, I'm the first to realize that isn't unique in the child-rearing world, but she has added a new twist to the old game.

Each night we put her to bed promptly at nighty-night-thirty. . .and exactly at nighty-aint-forty she parades into the living room sans clothes. Nude. Naked as a jaybird.

Without making a big deal of it, either I or my better half fetch Mattie's clothes from where ever she's hidden them, redress her and deposit her back in bed. Ten minutes later. Nude. Walking.

The game ceases to be funny after a time and a few well-placed swats in the area invented for just such corporal punishment usually does the trick and convinces Mattie that staying in bed, with her clothes on, is the thing to do.

Wednesday night, we went through the whole pattened deal, and finally I went in to check on her. And found her lying — yes, nude — in a suitcase in our bedroom.

There must be a morale somewhere in this sad tale but at the moment it escapes me.

RACIAL ADJUSTMENT

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (AP) — A baby girl with a European father and a Maori mother has achieved fame by being formally registered as a half-caste European.

Deidre Hemingway's Maori grandfather, Tom Waiwai, insisted on the move because he said, he was "fed-up with the term half-caste Maori."

Said Waiwai: "Whenever anyone with mixed blood does anything wrong he's always described as being part-Maori."

Deidre's parents agreed to the move. Although the official registration form contained no provision for representing a child as a half-caste European, the registrar's office accepted the entry.

TAKE THE A TRAIN?

NEW YORK (AP) — The noisiest subway stations in the world are on Manhattan's west side where the "A" trains run express at high speed between 59th and 125th streets, according to a noise surveyor.

"It sounds something like a tornado going directly overhead when you're in a storm cellar," said Martin F. Huss, a transportation engineer at Brooklyn's Polytechnic Institute.

Huss said, "The very best system in terms of low noise would appear to be Montreal's, which runs on rubber wheels."

SATELLITE STUDIES CLOUDS

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Clues to the origin of the stars are being gathered by an unmanned satellite orbiting 500 miles above the earth.

Called the Orbiting Astronomical Observatory, the satellite is studying the composition of interstellar clouds, believed by some to be the matter from which stars are formed.

"Scientists cannot study these gaseous clouds from the ground," said Dr. Lyman Spitzer of Princeton University, "since the ultraviolet light used to study them cannot penetrate the earth's atmosphere."

With an accuracy equivalent to focusing on the width of a pencil 10 miles away, a fine error sensor orients the satellite's telescope toward an object under investigation. The electronic system was designed and built by GTE Sylvania Inc.

FIND COINS

AALESUND, Norway (AP) — Three frogmen have recovered more than 440 pounds of gold and silver coins from a Dutch ship which sank off the Norwegian coast in 1725. The value of the coins has been estimated at more than $30,000.

Responsible baby sitters are trained, not born

It's diaper changing time for this young baby-sitter and she's handling the job like a pro. Her young charge will be clean, dry and comfortable in no time at all. After an application of baby powder which contains petroleum jelly. (Vaseline Intensive Care Baby Lotion.)

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—It's good for a laugh when mom opens the door to a baby-sitter who turns out to be younger than the "baby." But it's only funny on television.

Parents should ask themselves one question before giving their sons or daughters permission to take charge of someone else's youngster. Is my child responsible enough to baby-sit?

Not so long ago you, yourself, were scurrying around for baby-sitters for your little one. And now that same "little one" thinks she is ready to assume the baby-sitting role.

Remember how careful you were in selecting a baby-sitter? As a responsible parent you should help your own child to become the responsible baby-sitter you would have chosen.

Standing in for parents, even for a short period of time, is a challenging experience. And there are important duties that must be assumed when taking care of children. If your youngsters are in their teens you may have forgotten infant care techniques and it might be wise to go over some of the basics.

Extra care in handling is essential. Baby's bones and muscles are in the early stages of development. Also, if a formula is to be prepared, the ingredients must be in the correct proportions. So it is important for a baby-sitter to be careful and exacting and to understand the formula's preparation.

When babies are awake, they must never be left unguarded. Buttons, pills and other small objects look like tasty treats to a young one. Even while the baby is asleep, an occasional peek is wise.

Caring for children past the infant stage has its challenges, too. As children grow older they become more alert and inquisitive. They like to explore the most amazing places and inevitably get into mischief. It's all too easy for the playpen set to become fascinated with scissors, knives, letter openers, electrical outlets and other potentially dangerous objects.

Children need the opportunity to be independent but they must be watched carefully and handled with tact. Toddlers are often wise beyond their years. Many a young sitter has learned this to her chagrin. Mom may know her toddler's every trick. But the baby-sitter won't. And her charge will play the whole bag—or as many as the traffic will bear.

Some youngsters are in diapers until the age of three. Diapering a tot is difficult for a mother and even more trying for an inexperienced baby-sitter. Teach your child how to fold the diaper and hold it away from the child when pinning it.

Helping to prevent diaper rash and chafing and keeping baby comfortable are essential aspects of the diapering process. Here are a few hints that should help your child perform the diapering task efficiently.

Make sure the parents tell the sitter where they keep things like baby oil, powder and diapers. The first step in diapering is to clean the baby. Baby oil is an ideal lubricant for this cleaning process. An application of a baby lotion that is easily absorbed into the skin will moisturize, soothe, protect and allow baby powder to glide on easily. Finish the job with a light dusting of baby powder containing petroleum jelly. It's a barrier against wetness.

Accidents and illness are not likely to occur. But a baby-sitter must be equipped to deal with an emergency should it arise. Make certain your daughter has the phone numbers of the local police, fire department and pediatrician written down. Before the parents leave the baby-sitter should have the phone numbers where they, or a relative or neighbor, can be reached. And while she is getting that information it's a good time for her to discuss with the parents the rules of the house, such as television time, bedtime and snacks.

Should you wonder if your child is ready to baby-sit ask yourself whether or not you would leave her in charge if you had an infant or young one. If you have given her the advice and support needed, you are probably confident of her ability.

And, as an extra advantage, let her know that you are only a phone call away and will gladly offer any help or support she needs.

THIS CHICKEN IS NOT "IN THE ROUGH"

Whether it's vacation golfing or a round on the home course, it's time for a celebration when your foursome recounts the thrills and exasperations of the game. Something cool and refreshing is essential. Bloody Marys or tomato juice cocktails are especially festive with feathery celery stalks as stirrers.

By the time each memorable hole has been relived, a golfing group is ready for a substantial dinner. The chef from the Spokane, Washington Holiday Inn serves Spring Chicken Breasts with Polonaise Noodles to his hungry patrons. He's had plenty of experience pleasing golfers as the Inn adjoins a beautiful 18-hole golf course.

You can try a variation of his recipe at home. It uses chicken broth and a bit of sherry poured over the browned chicken breasts before they're baked. When the cooking's done, this broth is added to the gravy giving it a delightful sherry flavor. Other fascinating recipes from Holiday Inn chefs around the world are cut down to family size in the Holiday Inn International Cook Book.

For an interesting make-ahead garnish that also serves as a vegetable, fill cherry tomatos with a mixture of bread crumbs and tomato pulp seasoned to taste with salt, pepper, garlic powder and Parmesan cheese. Heat them in the oven just until they are warmed through.

For a golfing dinner that's right on course, serve Spring Chicken Breasts with Polonaise Noodles. The recipe is the chef's selection from the Spokane, Washington Holiday Inn for the Holiday Inn International Cook Book. The cook book is a collection of family-size recipes from Holiday Inn chefs all over the world. The baked stuffed cherry tomatoes serve as both a garnish and vegetable.

SPRING CHICKEN BREASTS WITH POLONAISE NOODLES

8 whole chicken breasts, boned and skinned
1 cup flour, seasoned with salt and pepper
½ cup butter
1 quart rich chicken broth*
½ cup sherry wine
1 cup half-and-half
Polonaise Noodles

*Or use 4 chicken bouillion cubes dissolved in 1 qt. water.

Rinse chicken and pat dry; roll in seasoned flour. Saute in butter over medium heat until golden brown. Arrange chicken in single layer in 15½x10½-inch baking pan. Pour ½ cup of the chicken broth and the sherry over chicken; cover and bake at 375° for 30 to 35 minutes. Meanwhile, combine the rest of the chicken broth with drippings in saute pan; simmer until liquid is reduced to half. Remove from heat. Cool ½ cup of the broth and blend in 3 tablespoons of the seasoned flour. Return this mixture to the broth in saute pan; cook and stir until very thick.

Remove baked chicken to heated platter; keep warm. Stir sherry drippings into thick gravy. Bring to boil, stirring constantly, and cook for 2 minutes. Remove from heat and gradually add half-and-half. Heat, but do not boil. Arrange Polonaise Noodles on serving platter and top with chicken. Garnish with stuffed cherry tomatoes, if desired. Serve gravy in sauceboat. Makes 8 generous servings.

Polonaise Noodles

Gently brown 1 cup bread crumbs in 2 tablespoons butter. Toss with 1 pound cooked wide egg noodles.

Teens Need Health Help

DEAR RAP:

Our state is supposed to be liberal. We let teenagers who "qualify" get abortions without notifying their parents (especially if they're able to pay). We also give treatment for VD without parental consent, from age 12 on.

BUT: the high schools and junior highs still require a note from home before the shortest kind of sex education can be offered to students. Teachers are pretty paranoid about discussing contraceptives. Before they can give information on venereal disease they need another signature from parents!

Probably the silliest law here is that girls under the age of 18 cannot get prescriptions for contraceptives unless a parent consents in writing or in person, preferably in person, as signatures can be forged. So it boils down to this: a girl can be aborted legally and her parents need never know—the State keeps her secret. But if she wants to prevent a pregnancy, the State gets all uptight and moral and says "Not unless Mama or Papa gives you permission."

I'm a college student who is not in the least "permissive." I was not the type to require The Pill in high school, but I know many girls who were taking big chances because they felt they were so in love they couldn't wait—and at that time even Planned Parenthood insisted you must be 18 before they'd help.

What I mean is: There are girls who wait and girls who absolutely won't—and it doesn't help to keep information from them, nor are the "waiters" influenced toward sex by being informed about it. More likely their attitudes are reinforced through class discussions.

Herewith, a plea for states to keep up with the times. There are areas where a teen can't get VD treatment unless his parents know—which means a lot don't get treated! Most states won't allow psychiatric counseling without parental knowledge—and what teen who worries about homosexual tendencies will confide in his mother or father? The majority of states veto prescriptions for contraceptives to minors unless parents approve (though most look the other way when Planned Parenthood organizations offer help.) And many schools have no sex education classes whatsoever.

If you print this, Helen and Sue, you'll probably get as many brickbats as bouquets, but it needs saying. I hope you will! — COLLEGE RESEARCHER

DEAR C.S.:

We will. And it does! Thanks for your timely, well-informed letter. — HELEN AND SUE

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

Another answer to Miss 220. I had to write to let her know there are fellows around who like big girls. However, she's right: guys will be put down for dating a fat girl. It takes courage— that first date.

Here are a few suggestions to overweighters:

DRESS UP! Society wants to believe you're a slob, so don't prove it by running abound in a shift or sloppy T-shirt. Keep your hair and make-up looking great. Stay neat.

Stay in shape. I'm not kidding. Big people need exercise. Be agile. You don't have to waddle just because you're fat. Don't just sit there and grow.

This one's the hardest: Learn to laugh at yourself. I have known fat girls you didn't dare use the words "big" or "huge" around or they'd take it personally. It's hard to have fun with someone when you must watch every word you say.

Last, I like curves and bikinis as much as the next guy. But I'll always have a spot in my heart for the biggies. I'm sure a lot of other fellows do too, if they'd only admit it. —FRANK

THE FAMILY LAWYER

For Health's Sake

At a state university, all incoming students were required to have chest X-rays. But at least one young woman found this intolerable. In a court challenge, she argued:

"Having a chest X-ray is contrary to the principles of my religion. To require it is to violate my religious freedom, which is guaranteed by the First Amendment."

However, the court overruled her objection. Noting that X-rays can reveal tuberculosis and that tuberculosis is infectious, the court said:

"The regulation is purely for the purpose of discovery. It does not say you must be treated if you are ill; it only says if you are ill and (don't) know it, you cannot spread your infection to others."

Religious freedom, of course, ranks high in our constitutional system. But it does not outrank the necessities of public health. Said one judge:

"The health of the people is the first law."

Other freedoms, too, may be limited by considerations of health. In another case, a restaurant owner invoked freedom of enterprise to oppose the rules of sanitation laid down by city hall. But a court ruled that freedom of enterprise likewise must yield to the public weal.

"The danger to health," said the court, "renders the (restaurant) business a proper one for regulation."

Still, even health regulations must meet the test of reasonableness. One squeamish city council, worried about germs, passed a law flatly forbidding the sale of any second-hand clothes within the boundaries of the community.

But when this law was tested in court, it was held to be unconstitutional. The court said a total ban simply could not be justified, since lesser controls could protect the public perfectly well.

Putting the "health" label on an unreasonable law, said the court, did not make it reasonable.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

South's jump to four spades was a distinct overbid. The odds were against his partner holding as much as one queen and South was looking at four probable losers outside the trump suit.

On the other hand, the game was rubber bridge and rubber bridge players tend to overbid a trifle with hands as strong as the one South was looking at.

The dummy didn't even hold a 10-spot, but the doubleton diamond was like money from home.

South ruffed the third club and promptly played ace-king-three of diamonds to ruff in dummy. Then South led dummy's last trump; thought a while; went up with his ace; dropped West's singleton queen and claimed game and rubber.

"Nice guess!" remarked North.

"It wasn't a guess," replied South. "West had opened the bidding with one heart and rebid two clubs. His club holding was ace-king-queen-10 and he would have opened one club unless his heart suit was a five-carder. That accounted for nine cards and he had followed to three leads of diamonds. That left him with just one spade. If it were anything but the queen East would have a sure spade trick and my only chance was for West's singleton to be that card.

South was right. He also had shown the validity of our theory that if you want to overbide you should be sure to play well.

ASTRO-GRAPH

BY BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Saturday, Oct. 21

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY

You may not always get your way easily, but you can understand and make the most of things. Challenges will strengthen and broaden your outlook.

ARIES (Mar 21-Apr 19): Someone may try to rain on your parade. Quick thinking will get you out of frustration's way.

TAURUS (Apr 20-May 20): Problems with work may cause you some aggravation. Grin and bear it, for it's likely to fatten your wallet.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your creativity and imagination should be running in high gear. Use your best ideas now, save the others for later.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Unreasonable demands will strain the tolerance of others. No problem, if you let them exercise their independence as well.

LEO (July 23-Aug 22): Your presence is sought by friends. Don't shine too brightly—it could ruffle the other guy's feathers.

VIRGO (Aug 23-Sept 22): Sew up that hole in your pocket. It's not like you to spend so impulsively. Better bargains at a later date.

LIBRA (Sept 23-Oct 23): A cool head and reliance upon experience will give you the edge in dealing with others. Some concessions required.

SCORPIO (Oct 24-Nov 22): You may have to complete some unfinished tasks today. Spend energy wisely. Leave some time for relaxations.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 23-Dec 21): Friends are likely to place large demands on your time. Fun is fun, but know when to quit.

CAPRICORN (Dec 22-Jan 19): You could be a little touchy about status and reputation. Let achievement do the talking, not an indignant temper.

AQUARIUS (Jan 20-Feb 19): Not everyone reasons with your objective logic. If you attack another's philosophy, sparks will surely fly.

PISCES (Feb 20-Mar 20): Don't press too hard for others' help. People may put their needs first.

Panthers clinch title

By ALAN FOSTER
Star Sports Writer

The Game was over, the clock read 0:00, and the Magnolia Panthers had clinched the 7AA title for the second year in a row with a victory over a fighting bunch of Hope Bobcats. The 35-17 score does not give a true picture of the game.

Everyone thought it would be a game of breaks, and misfortune hit the Bobcats first, as they fumbled away to Magnolia on the first play from scrimmage.

Reds cut A's margin

CINCINNATI (AP) — A baseball game in bright sunshine can really open your eyes. Look what it did for Bobby Tolan and the rest of the Cincinnati Reds.

Tolan drove in two runs to help the Reds beat the Oakland A's 5-4 in the fifth game of the World Series Friday at Oakland.

The Reds, who had trouble hitting in the twilight in two previous games at Oakland, cut the A's margin in the series to 3-2. Today it's game No. 6 at Cincinnati.

Friday, the Reds' Pete Rose hit Jim "Catfish" Hunter's first pitch for a home run and Denis Menke drilled another one into the seats three innings later.

The homers were the first for Cincinnati in this series.

Hunter had a 4-2 lead going into the fifth inning, but had to leave after Tolan knocked in the Reds' third run with a single. Rollie Fingers, who has pitched in every series game thus far, shut off the Reds' threat then but later gave up the tying run on another base hit by Tolan in the eighth and the winning run on Rose's single in the ninth.

Rose had delivered only one hit in 15 at-bats before going 3-for-5 Friday. He also had a single in the third inning.

The Reds appeared on the brink of elimination after Gene Tenace's three-run homer in the second inning gave the A's a 3-1 lead.

The capacity crowd of 49,410 gave Tenace a standing ovation as he crossed home plate, courtesy of Cincinnati starter Jim McGlothlin. Mike Epstein walked and George Hendrick singled prior to the wallop, Tenace's fourth of the series.

Only four others players in history have belted four in a World Series—Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Duke Snider and Hank Bauer. No player has hit five homers in a series.

The Reds' dugout came to life again—and the partisan crowd quieted down—when the National League champions cut the Oakland lead to 3-2 on Menke's home run down the left field line.

Gonzalo Marquez, who tied a World Series record for pinch hits with three, gave the home team a 4-2 edge with a runscoring single in the fourth.

Joe Morgan, Tolan and Rose—three players who hadn't done much in this series—then proved the undoing of the American League champions.

Morgan walked with two out in the fifth inning and came all the way home after getting a big jump when Tolan drilled a line-drive single to right-center. Morgan's speed also paid off again in the eighth when he walked, stole second and roared home to tie the contest 4-4 on Tolan's base hit.

After Rose knocked in the winning run in the ninth inning, it was Morgan's arm—not his legs—that saved the game for Cincinnati.

The A's had runners on first and third with one out on a walk to Tenace and a pinch-hit single by Dave Duncan. Bert Campaneris lifted a dying fly in foul territory along the first base line that Morgan gloved.

But John "Blue Moon" Odom, running for Tenace at third, sensed a chance to score. He raced home, but was cut down on Morgan's peg to catcher Johnny Bench for a double play that ended it, although Morgan slipped on the heavy turf just before making the throw.

War of strategy continues

CINCINNATI (AP) — Sparky Anderson concedes Dick Williams a slight edge in their private war on strategy after five games of the 1972 World Series.

But the Cincinnati Reds skipper says he, not the Oakland A's manager will emerge the final victor in the baseball classic.

"He's done a good job...he pulls out all the stops," Anderson said of Williams as the Reds flew home from Oakland Friday night for today's sixth Series encounter.

"But I've been saying all along," Anderson continued, "that if it gets to 3-2—the A's present margin in the series—we'd have to be favored, being home.

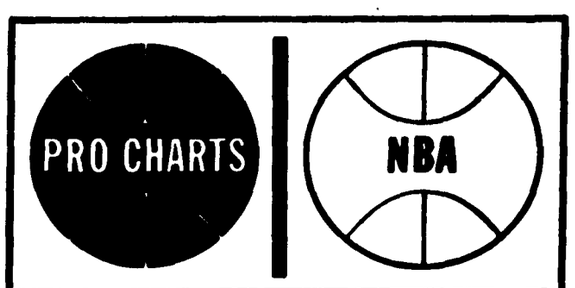

"I still say we'll win it in seven."

Philadelphia 76ers

NBA—Atlantic Division

1971-72 finish: W 30, L 52—3rd place

PROSPECTUS: Philadelphia missed play-offs for first time since 1963. This year looks worse. Billy Cunningham, the heart and soul of Sixers, was awarded to Carolina of ABA in appeals court. Without him, new Coach Roy Rubin had better start building as quickly as possible. Guard Hal Greer's best games are behind him. There's no top-notch center to cope with the many super pivots in NBA. And club has failed to sign No. 1 draft pick Fred Boyd, a 6-2 guard. Rubin is used to rebuilding teams. This one is a classic case.

FORWARDS: Bill Bridges, a 10-year vet, excels on boards. He averaged 13.2 after mid-season trade for Jim Washington and will have to pull out all stops to take up slack now. John Block (8.5) is a pleasant addition from Milwaukee in Wali Jones' trade. Block, 6-10, will score more now but needs to be more consistent than with Milwaukee. Al Henry, a flop as a rookie, showed he can play but is at best a No. 3 forward. Rating: C.

CENTER: Sixers got a 17-point average from 6-9 Bob Rule after November trade with Seattle. He is agile and a good outside shooter, but not a natural center. Dennis Awtrey failed to impress when used. Rating: C+.

GUARDS: Hal Greer (11.8) has played more regular season NBA games (1,084) than anybody. He can still score coming off the bench. But there's no young Greer elsewhere. Kevin Loughery (12.4) and Fred Carter (13.6) are adequate, while Dave Wohl (8.1) is coming off a good rookie year and will get better. Given the ball more with Cunningham gone, Loughrey and Carter can become better scorers. But even with him they ranked 15th in defense. Rubin wants and expects better defense and guard is the most likely place for it to develop at first. Rating: C+.

PREDICTION: Rubin was a miracle worker at Long Island University. On paper this club should win more than the 30 it won in '71-'72 if he were there. But he isn't. Getting the other Sixers to play to their potential is Rubin's chief task. He may do it—but not this year. Fourth in Atlantic.

grid quiz

by Dave Nelson, executive secretary, NCAA Football Rules Committee

A Kansas State receiver steps on the sideline while running a pass pattern. While the ball is in the air an Oklahoma State defender pushes the receiver illegally in the field of play. The pass is incomplete.

The official should:

1. Penalize Oklahoma State for pass interference at the spot of the foul.

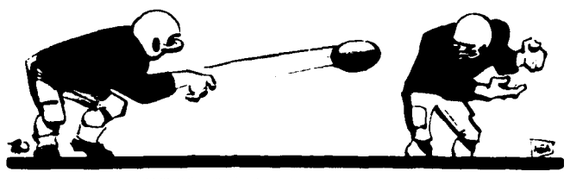

2. Declare the pass incomplete with no penalty.

3. Penalize Oklahoma State 15 yards from the spot of the snap for defensive holding.

Answer: Number 2. Declare the pass incomplete with no penalty.

Rule: (7-3-4) No eligible offensive player who goes out of bounds during a down shall touch a legal forward pass in the field of play or end zone until it has been touched by an opponent. This player is not an eligible pass receiver.

UPSET CHOICE---

Major Likes Colorado Over Oklahoma; Picks Alabama, Arkansas in Big Ones

By MAJOR AMOS B. HOOPLE
Fearless Forecaster

Egad, friends, there are some stirring things in store for you football filberts this weekend—two big contests in the Big Eight, Oklahoma-Colorado and Nebraska-Kansas, the Alabama-Tennessee showdown in the Southeastern Conference and the Texas-Arkansas hoedown in the Southwest loop.

Jove, what a thrill it would be to witness all of those confrontations. But I shall have to settle for one and not wishing to slight any of those fine schools I shall not reveal my choice—um-kumph!

The biggest game of the day will bring the biggest surprise of the season as the Colorado Buffaloes deal mighty Oklahoma a stunning 28-22 defeat—kaff-kaff! My condolences to the Sooner fans but that's the way the Hoople System is calling it! In the other Big Eight battle the Nebraska Cornhuskers will vanquish valiant Kansas, 40-28.

Alabama rolling toward the Southeastern throne room will not be denied as it turns back a rugged band of Tennessee Volunteers, 27-22 — har-rumph!

We were forced to push the Hoople Computers to the limit to come up with enough information to separate the fine Arkansas and Texas elevens. We — kaff-kaff — have narrowed it down to the margin of a field goal, 24-21, in favor of the Razorbacks over the Texas Longhorns!

The Air Force and Navy will tangle for the fifth time in their series and the Falcons figure to sink the Middies, 35-14. Meanwhile at Altanta, Auburn will make Ramblin' Wrecks of Georgia Tech — heh-heh — as they defeat the Yellow Jackets, 28-21 — kaff-kaff!

The Old Boy Himself

The Arizona State Sun Devils will continue their drive for the Western Athletic crown, blasting Brigham Young University 42-17. Remember, you read it first in the Hoople Forecast!

Now go on with the forecast.

Deac Jones' hands didn't get like that by praying

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

SAN DIEGO, Calif.—(NEA)—David Jones alone pioneered the technique. With the snap of the football, WHAM! His left hand comes up and whacks the helmet in front of him. The head inside reverberates like a gong. With pantherish quickness, Jones whirs past the victim and envelops the quarterback.

He did his little act so devastatingly that for seven straight years, through 1970, David (Deacon) Jones was the premier defensive lineman in the game. His style was adopted by all the great defensive left ends in professional football—Carl Eller, Clyde Humphrey, Bubba Smith, Rich Jackson.

The old original act still isn't bad, either. They even changed the rules because of the Deacon.

"I used to slap the guy four or five times," he remembers. "Now they only let you do it once, and they restrict it to a two-yard radius along the line."

He dangles his long fingers, gnarled and scarred and swollen from too many collisions. They're unadorned.

"Put diamonds on that?" he mutters, self-deprecatingly.

It'll take five years for the swelling on Deacon's hands to go down so he can wear the diamonds stashed away in a drawer at home. He accumulated them by beating those hands on the heads and shoulders of offensive tackles in the National Football League for a dozen years. The Los Angeles Rams had drafted him as a 14th round unknown out of Mississippi Vocational back in 1961, and in his time up front with them the modern defensive concept of the fearsome foursome was created.

Deacon Jones

So it was with some astonishment and bewilderment that Deacon started the current season with the San Diego Chargers. It hurt the Deacon to be peddled, and so cheaply, for an obscure linebacker (no longer with the Rams) and draft choices. Of course, he is 33 years old and the last couple of years nagging injuries cut down his playing time and effectiveness.

But because the Deacon has the true pride of an artisan, he sought out the writer who had presented to him the George Halas Trophy as the outstanding defender in football for 1967 and '68, voted by his peers, and forewarned him, "Get that trophy ready for me again. I'm coming to claim it."

Recently the Deacon went up against Robert Brown of Oakland in a classic match of titans. Brown is a 285-pound offensive right tackle who had once been Deac's teammate on the Rams. Jones has now let his weight climb to 285 for more power. Their confrontation symbolized the battle in what they call the pits of pro football, a jousting noticed by few but extremely vital to the success or failure of team effort.

Their match-up amounted to a draw (and their teams ended in a tie score). "That's what happens," said Deacon later, "when two all-pros meet."

The Chargers, rebuilt with traded veterans like Jones, started the season slowly, getting clobbered by the San Francisco 49ers in their opener, and the Deacon was an invisible man. But they've since beaten the Colts and are coming on. "We're pros," says the Deacon. "We know what we've got. And we're getting to know each other."

That last point is most important because Jones had gotten used to having the comforting presence of Merlin Olsen, 6-5 and 284 pounds, alongside him all those years on the Rams. When the Deacon, who always relied more on speed and finesse than sheer power, felt like a little free lance maneuvering along the front line, he knew that burly Merlin would cover for him.

Now he's got Ron East alongside—smaller, not as powerful, more like Deacon in style, depending on quickness. "It's tough to work with another guy," admits Deacon. "It's difficult to communicate at first until you get to know each other's style."

In a recent game, the offensive guard and tackle crossblocked against Jones and East. The tackle, who would normally handle Deacon, blocked down on East. Instinctively, Jones closed down fast along the scrimmage line (i.e., rushed to the inside from his end position).

"I closed too tight," he says. The back with the ball simply ran around him. In the old days, Deacon knew that instinctively Olsen would have drifted wide to cover for him.

"Now," says Jones, "we've got two guys who rely on quickness, so we've got to do it different. We have to take care of our individual responsibility."

Deacon's always been an individualist. He carries letters spelling out "DEACON" on his jersey, a blatant disregard of the Rozelleague edict that only proper last names be put on uniforms.

"When you got four Jones boys on your club, like we got," shrugs Deacon, "you use Deacon. Besides, that's the only real name most people know me by."
